Oh! the memory of that dreary night When we stood around his bed, Until death stole upon him, And we knew his soul had fled.

Ah! since then my life is saddened;
Since that night my hopes are slain,
But his voice seems sweetly saying:
. "Laura we shall meet again." He sleeps, he sleeps, and nevermore Will his footsteps fall by the old hou door, Nor his voice be heard, with loving tone, By the sad ones left around our hearth-

Rest on, dear Phil, thy labor is over; Thy willing hands will toil no more; A faithful husband, true and kind— A truer husband you could not find.

He did his best to everyone; Everywhere true friendship wen, But God, in wisdom, kind and just, Called him home with Him to rest Phil, I will try to live each day
That I may like you be,
And when earth's joys have passed away
Safe in Heaven with you I'll be.
